present. The proceedings very closely resembled those of the famous Haymarket riot.
Lucy Parsons, although occupying a chair in an obscure corner of the hall, could not restrain herself from breaking forth occasionally with such remarks as. 'Hang the murderers of my husband." Editor Jacob Weissman, of New York, delivered an address which was New York, delivered an address which was inflammatory and incendiary. During his speech the police, fearing trouble, prepared themselves for an emergency, which, luckily, did not occur. Weissman referred to the fact that the American flag was not seen in the hall and was boasting of it.

At this juncture inspector of Police Hubbard and ten officers advanced to the platform, and delivered himself as follows:

"This is America. The stars and stripes must be displayed among the colors here or I shall close up this meeting. It is all red here, You have no known flag and you are boasting of the fact. I want to see the flag produced or this audience must disperse."

Quick as a flash the great audience was on its feet and there were cat calls from every side, but finally order was restored and the

One hundred policemen, under the leadership of Inspector Lewis, marched down upon an Anarchist meeting in Griefs Hall to-night. The moment the first squad of police, headed by Lieutenant Wheeler, burst in on the Anarchist, a man named Daniel Sutter reached for a revolver in his hip pocket, but before he could use it officers overpowered and disarmed him. The twenty-five or thirty men who were sitting in the bar-room tried to force their way out to the street, but were prevented by the police. Every man in the saloon was then searched for weapons.
While this was going on another squad of policemen dashed up the narrow stairway into the halls above. Only one man here made any resistance. His name was Henry Miller. "Damn the police," he shouted.
"They are cowards or else they would not draw their revolvers upon inoffensive men." Two officers grasped Miller and searched him. He had a big revolver and fought desperately before it could be taken away from him. Several copies of the speech delivered by Parsons on the night of the

BANKERS TALK ABOUT SILVER

Free Coinage Discussed by the Convention in New Orleans.

FANCY DESCRIPTION OF WALL STREET,

By George Eutledge Gibson-"Is it Practical to Have a National Rate of Interterest?" Discussed.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Nov. 12.-At the Bankers' Convention to-day, W. P. St. John, of New York, read a paper on the silver question. He urged the reopening of the mints to equally unrestricted coinage of gold and silver. He says his plan will tend to unite the currency by providing a single automatic issue in lieu of any capricious issue of circulating notes. These notes would be redeemable in coin, the coin reserved for them being at face amount of the notes.

Hon. John Jay Knox, ex-Comptroller of the Currency, replied to Mr. St. John, arguing against the free coinage of gold and silver.
Mr. Johnson, of Birmingham, spoke in favor of an honest silver dollar.

Mr. George Rutledge Gibson then read a fancy descriptive paper on "Wall Street."

Mr. Gibson briefly reviewed the history of stock exchanges and devoted much space to the principles and benefits of speculation; the ethics of speculation the utility of the middleman or broker the community of interest between Wall street and the country. terest between Wall street and the country-the influence of the Stock Exchange and the international relations of Wall street. Mr. Gibson treated his subject from a Wall-street standpoint. Speaking of the relative value of railroad and farming property in the West, he claimed that to the railroads, in the in-creased transportation facilities furnished. creased transportation facilities furnished. the farmer owed most of the increased value of his farm property. Mr. Gibson expressed the opinion that the bankers of the interior of the country owe it to themselves as influential citizens of the communities in which they live to combat the feeling of hostility in many sections to capital and to Wall street. He paid a high tribute to the morals of the Wall-street bankers and brokers, especially as to their integrity in financial matters and their scrupulous regard for the involability of contracts they make, even in the hurry and bustle of transactions upon the Exchange.

A paper was read by William C. Cornwall, of Budaio, N. Y., on "Canadian Bank Currency," and one by Hon. P. W. Peeples, of Jackson, Miss., on "Statesmanship in Finance."

The topic for discussion was "Is it practi-cable to have a national rate of interest."

A SERIOUS FIRE.

Two Little Children Nearly Suffocated by Smoke-A Blaze at Father Tierney's. Quite a serious fire occurred last evening at the residence of Mrs. Jennie Franck, No. 913 east Marshall street. The alarm was turned in from box 124 a few minutes before 9 o'clock and the conflagration started in a room occu-pied by Messrs. F. The two came near being sufficiated by the dense smoke, for below the fire had made considerable head-Valuant firemen, however, immediately rushed into the apartment and the children were carried out into the air lovingly, half smothered with blankets, by Mr. Macon Johnson, an old ex-fireman, and Fireman S. R. Perdue, of Engine Company No. 2. The fire was immediatelly extinguished. The damage amounts to about $150 to the dwelling and furniture, but the children were made quite ill, and Dr. and Mrs. Cudlipp were quite uneasy about them late last evening. No serious results, however, are apprehended.

A still alarm was responded to at 8:45 yesterday morning by the Steamer company on Twenty-fifth street. The blaze was at Father Tierney's home, No. 213 north Twenty sixth street. The flames were quickly extinguished. Damage about $15.

for the actor—a social event for the fashion-able and cultured people of this city. Every box, the orchestra and each of the three galleries were filled to their capacity, and in the parquet could be seen Richmond's representatives, many of whom wore evening dross.

Mr. Warde for the first time in this city presented "The Lion's Mouth," a historical and romantic drama of the time of the sixteenth century. As is well know it was written by Henry Guy Carleton, and even from a literary standpoint contains some of the prettiest gems in English literature. The play deals with the period of Venetian history, when the lion's mouth played such a history, when the lion's mouth played such a conspicuous part in the Inquisition. It is strong throughout, but the climax of the third act is a wonderful piece of artistic work and was delivered by Mr. Warde and his company in an extraordinary manner last eve-

Next season I will be accompanied on my tour by Mr. Louis James, and will produce another new play by Mr.

and will produce another new play by Mr. Carleton."

Mr. Warde's support is perhaps the strongest he has ever had. Miss Belgarde interpreted her role with a great deal of feeling and spirit, and gave to it a naivete and expression duly appreciated by her auditors. She "looks" the part, and is a very pretty woman.

Mr. Charles Hermann did powerful work and throughout demonstrated the fact that he is a conscientious actor and a favorite in Richmond. He shows considerable improvement.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis has made the selection of a resting-place for the remains of her honored husband. Yesterday afternoon, in company with Mrs. Joseph R. Anderson, she pany with Mrs. Joseph R. Anderson, she visited Hollywood and was met by the executive committee of the cemetery, composed of Messrs. A. Bargamin, Captain E. D. Starke and George Pleasants.

They drove about the burial ground and noted the most desirable unoccupied sections. The one which had been most admired by the president of the cemetery company has now been sold, but that selected is in the same locality and is beautifully situated.

The lot is eighty feet square and is opposite

Rappahannock Oyster Trade Dall-Personal. Saluda, Va., Nov. 12.—Rappahannock oystermen are complaining of dullness in their trade. It cannot, they was, be due to the weather, which has been favorable thus far, or to quality, as coves have never been finer and rivers are good. Some attribute it to the surplus of fruit-packing, others to the over length of the spring taking season, allowing too much time for Northern planters to seed their shores from Virginia rocks, thus allowing a supply for the early fall demand. To a certain extent, no doubt both are right, but still some other cause must exist.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 .- The committee of arrangements for the proposed Parnell memorial meeting at the Academy of Music on November 15th met last night. Reports from sub-committees showed that the success of the affair was assured. Among the letters received was the following from ex-President Cleveland:

"No. 816 Medison Avenue, Nov. 11, 1891.—
John McConvill, chairman, etc.: Dear Sir.—I am a staunch believer in the doctrine of home rule, and have not failed to appreciate the labors in the cause of the man whose servilabors in the cause of the man whose services you propose to a mmemorate. For what he accomplished and sought to accomplish for home rule he deserved to be honored by all those who have a free and representative government, but his aims and purp see had their rise so completely in patriotism, and his unselfish love for his countrymen was so conspicuous and disinterested that the reverence and devotion due to the memory of a patriot must always be associated with his name. The influence of his example surely ought not to be lost upon those who take up his work to which he so thoroughly consecrated all his efforts and aspirations.
